“ I have known the Barr family since the boys were young. You could not find a finer or closer knit family. That is one reason I wish I had the right words to comfort them in their time of grief. I really got to know Scott and Chris when we played in the St. Albans Church Softball League. Not only were they great athletes but they were great sportsmen. Everyone who played in the league loved them. If you couldn't have fun playing softball either with them or against them you didn't belong on the field. Whenever you talked about the Barr boys you talked about them both. Although they weren't twins they couldn't be any closer than any identical twins. Through Scott's courageous battle against his cancer Chris was right there with him. And no one has ever fought harder and longer than Scott did. Scott followed his "country road" far, far too soon. But we will all follow him down the road and meet him somewhere in the future. I also know that there is now now there is another angel (WVU cap instead of a halo) helping the Mountaineers at all of their sporting events. And I think that will be worth at least 5 points against the spread in WVU football and basketball games. I will drink a beer to that.

“ I will never forget how Scott called me when my mother had just found out she had lung cancer. He was so caring and helpful which was so comforting in a confusing and hurtful time. For Scott to take time out of his day to do that shows a lot of who he was. Heaven got a true Mountaineer and great guy.

“ I will never forget coaching you on my little league team, you were always good for a laugh . My best memory was the year I won the ncaa basketball pool but I didn't find out until two months after the tournament because you had the money in your sock drawer,and couldn't find it until you decided to wear socks one day!!!! RIP Socko!!!!
