“ Thinking of your family with love and terrible sadness. My name is Eva Seccurro. I am a teacher at Hurricane High School and a mother of a son with Crohn's/Ulcerative Colitis. My daughter Delainy is one of Ashlee's classmate. Our hearts are hurting for you and yours...

I know I can't make your pain go away. I wish we could have connected sooner.

If you need us in any way, feel free to contact me on FB. We can exchange numbers.

Unfortunately, I will miss the funeral, I will be in Ohio, as my son has a Crohn's procedure scheduled.

I will be stopping by the funeral home early tomorrow morning. I would like to say goodbye to your sweet Ashlee.

Your loss has had an impact on my entire family. I am so sorry.

Praying for strength. May God Rest Her Sweet Soul...

TO

“ I have so many fond memories of Ashlee when she was much younger. Her mother Lori has been a great friend to me for 24 years. She was like one of my own, She was such a beautiful little girl who was always looking out for her younger brother Austin making sure he did not stray far. She loved swimming in the pool, dancing to music, and drawing and coloring with my kids. Who knew she would become a great artist back then. . She moved away to Texas and I regret that I missed a great portion of her growing up. I was so happy when they moved back. I was just starting to know the beautiful young woman she was becoming. She was just starting to blossom... a beautiful flower. She was taken to soon but she was loved so much and will be missed beyond words..

I love you Ashlee.. rest in peace.

“ Ashlee was a good friend of mine. We sat with each other in our 4th block class. Our history class. We often talked about our shared interest in music, art, and anime. She was absent for weeks at a time on occasion, she said she had a stomach condition. She had left to go to get surgery last I heard. I never thought her condition would get bad so fast. One of my regrets is that I never completed a bet we once made. I forget what exactly we made a bet about, all I remember is that the loser owed the other candy. I lost that bet. I never got to give her the candy. Me and her had also planned on getting to be closer friends and starting to sit with each other at lunch once she recovered. But as you know...she never did. I remember once we talked about birthdays. My birthday, as well as my identical twins, are July 15, 2001. She joked and called us triplets. She was an amazing person, and an amazing friend. I wish I could have said more to her before, I wish I could have done more for her. If you ever see pieces of candy on her grave stone, know it's from me, her friend, repaying my side of the bet, as I shall each time I visit her grave. - Yin/Emma Pardue
