“ It's been 5 long years since, the Lord took my sweet daddy home! He suffered with cancer for 27 years, even while in remission his health was never strong, then his strong body was once again overcome by cancer until he finally took his last breath in September 30 2013. I still haven't visited his grave. I just can't. He's not there any way he's in Heaven in a perfect, pain free brand new body! He was the best man I'll ever have the privilege of knowing! His faith in the Lord never wavered, his last words to me were about my only son, and his only grandson, that ALL that mattered in this life was faith that Jesus died on the Cross and rose again for my son's sins and he wanted me to promise to share the importance of salvation with my son, and make sure he attended Church! Well dad I kept my promise, a year and 2 months later I had the privilege of leading my own son to Christ and then just 2 weeks ago, he was baptised! I swear I could almost hear my dad rejoicing from above! I long for the trumpet to sound I listen for it! " This world is not my home although it seems to be, my home is with The Father in the place He's preparing for me, He 's coming back real soon, the signs are so very clear, and when that trumpet sounds I will be out of here" Thank God for parents who knew the only real knowledge in this world that mattered was faith in the Holy Spirit, and the gift of salvation and eternal life! I believe it was 3 may be 4 souls saved at my dad's funeral service! That is an example of what a pure Godly man he was. I had the blessing of being his daughter! I miss him some days more than I think I'll be able to stand! Then God reminds me, that trumpet is about to sound and there will be no more pain for me or my loved ones, and praise God for His promise to return! This is just temporary! Lovell Aubrey Grant was a blessing to this world and to everyone he came into contact with. I'll see you soon daddy! I miss you every single day! I am sorry I ever took you, your time, your words, and your advice for granted! You are truly missed and I am forever humbled because you were such an inspiration to my life and my son's life! I love you daddy! Wait for us!
